

A Horrifying Adventure

One sunny afternoon, David and his family decided to go hiking. They wore a huge smile on their faces. They looked around the woods, admiring their surroundings and sharing thoughts with each other on the way. ‘What a great beginning for the day!’ David thought.

While walking, David saw a bird nest on a tree. He heard a baby crow’s crying. He got curious. ‘A bird nest! I’ve never seen them before!’ David exclaimed. He shouted for his parents, but they did not hear him. He decided to climb the tree. He knew it was wrong, but his curiosity led him forward. ‘Here I go!’ David took a deep breath.

On the tree, he saw the bird nest. It was full of baby crows. ‘So cute! Hi, baby crows!’ He was about to touch them, until their mother crow flew towards him. The mother crow attacked him as if saying, ‘Hands off!’ David yelled and let go of his grip. Thump! He fell, head first on the ground.

Luckily, his parents weren’t far from him and noticed that he fell. They rushed over. ‘David! Are you alright?’ His mother shouted. David opened his eyes, ‘Mother, Father, I think I’m having a concussion.’ He explained everything to his parents. ‘I hope you are alright, but don’t do that again!’ his father frowned. They walked home happily, glad to have each other.
