The Tree of Light

I've been working a lot lately, with exams coming up, and loads of schoolwork. However, that was not going to stop me from heading to the woods. In fact, that was exactly why I'm going into the forest. To clear my head and relax a bit. To escape from all the school work and burden. As I walked deeper into the forest, I noticed something strange. I felt this tiny urge to walk towards an unknown direction. Nothing was drawing me in, tempting me to go in deeper. Just then, I noticed a glimpse of light. A faint glowing. Glowing trees? In the forest? Now that's definitely not a thing that happens everyday. I found myself walking closer to the tree. Where did all this light even come from? I was now just a few meters from the tree. That's enough to see it as clear as day. The tree had shining flowers! They were as bright as the soft glow of the moon, pure and warm. Part of me was taking in the beauty of the tree, while the other part of me was swarming with questions.

Suddenly, I noticed some writing, carved into the cold hard oak. I ran my fingers along the words as I tried to read them. Then, all of a sudden, a small box popped right out of the tree trunk. I couldn't hold my curiosity any longer, so I opened the box. Inside was a little note. It was brown and yellow all over, with little tearings on the side, indicating that it was from a very long time ago. I slowly unfolded the paper, careful not to break it. It says 'To uncover the secret of this tree, turn to the golden light of my flowers, for they will hold the key.'

I did not understand that at all. I suppose that means for me to examine the shiny flowers. My hand reached out in attempt to touch one of the flowers, but it just floated right into my hand all by itself. Then, its petals started to open up, one by one, and a golden ball of what seemed like glass revealed itself. I took the ball carefully and inspected it carefully. Questions like: What is that? What do I do with it? Why is this here? popped into my brain. Then I noticed, it was like a video, playing inside the transparent gold ball. 'Maybe I need to watch it' I thought. I know I should be back home by now, but curiosity got the better of me, so I watched it. As I watched everything play out inside that little sphere, everything started to make sense! Why the tree was glowing, why I was so drawn to it in the first place, everything was answered.

Turns out, a long time ago, a kind sorcerer lost his best friend to war, and for a while, he seemed to have lost hope in everything because of that. However, a while later, he found faith again, and he felt bad for the people who were going through the same situation, therefore, he created the never dying, forever shining tree as a symbolization of finding hope and light again for those who feel lost.

I felt touched after watching everything. I awed at how amazing anything can be, and how such a simple thing like a tree can hide so much depth, meaning, and emotion. I was glad I stumbled upon this tree. It has also been an amazing way to learn something new. I hope everyone will find their hope, faith, and light. This is going to be the most special day of my life. I thought as I walked silently back to my building.

That concluded my day. It was a thrilling experience. Part of me is already starting to hope for another adventure soon...
